

Accessorize It!

A cage is not complete without all the furnishings.

By Susan Chamberlain

"Each of my birds has at least three different kinds of perches," said Meredith Bain, who shares her home with a white-bellied caique and an Indian ring-necked parakeet. "They each have a concrete perch, a cactus perch and a natural wood or rope perch. It's important for them to have different surfaces to stand on so they don't get sore feet."

For the full article, pick up the 2010 issue of Birds USA or click here to buy the issue.